

UNESCO

Citizenship Education: A Global Perspective

Education must transform to meet the needs of increasingly turbulent times, when the planet faces rising environmental, social and economic pressures. UNESCO has been at the forefront of the promotion of global citizenship education, which aims to equip every young person with the values and intercultural competences they need to face this world of change, through civic participation, respect for human rights, cultural diversity and new practices to foster sustainable development and peace.