

Alejandro Aguirre Batres. He has a Bachelor's degree in Sustainable Development Management and postgraduate studies in Transparency and Good Government, and Citizen Participation Management. He is getting a Master's degree in Society and Political Research. He has 20 years of experience working with development organizations. He has experience with political and organizational education for local impact and management and social audit. He has had experience with electoral processes since 1999 and with the reforms to the electoral political system, coordinating multidisciplinary teams, and being part of national and international networks.