

Christine Corso is the Researcher and Project Coordinator at People for Education. She studied Health Sciences at McMaster University and went on to earn her Master of Teaching at OISE. Christine recently spent two years teaching in Edmonton, Alberta and is happy to join the P4E team. In her role as Researcher and Project Coordinator, Christine oversees P4E's Annual Survey of Schools and is involved in the Measuring What Matters research initiative.