

Joan Atlin has worked in the non-profit and public sector for over 25 years. She has held a variety of consulting and staff roles in local, national and international projects in research, project and program development, policy and stakeholder engagement. She has served as a senior policy advisor in the Ontario government, director of programs at the Toronto Region Immigrant Employment Council, and executive director of the Association of International Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario. She worked with People for Education as Project Lead for the Measuring What Matters Initiative. She holds a Master's degree in Political Science from York University in Toronto, and BA in International Development from the University of Guelph.