

Rasha Abdel Latif. She is passionate about supporting the development of local communities. Since 2009 she has worked in the MENA region with activists and civil society organizations to amplify citizen voices and increase their participation in decision making processes through running advocacy campaigns, and encouraging multiple stakeholders to implement social accountability initiatives through facilitating the implementation of open budgets, participatory budgets, in addition to raising the awareness on how to combat corruption through increased transparency. In addition to her work, she is a member of the Out&About Group for Social Development since its establishment.